Equally, if you get caught using an account generated through these programs, there are big consequences. The official Roblox site strongly advises against using schemes like account generators. They say that anyone asking you to input your details anywhere is scamming you, and that you won't receive a glitched account or free Robux. The terms of service also warn against it, too. They say that you cannot obtain "exploited game or experience content." This includes hacked accounts with Robux. If you're caught doing this, they reserve the right to immediately close your account.

That being said, there are a few things to note. First, this is not an official way of getting Robux. It might be possible the developers would ban users who obtained Robux via this method since it's not a legitimate way to get the in-game currency. Therefore, users are advised to bear caution while using these websites to get Robux.

Decentraland is another Metaverse candidate that grapples with this very issue. Dave Carr of the Decentraland Foundation tells me that the founders decided that "rather than have these environments be controlled by central bodies, they should have a decentralised structure and be open to everyone to own and govern." From economic matters, to content moderation and even the maintenance of its servers, Decentraland's user base dictates its entire policy course through regular votes.

It's a little bit complicated, but essentially you go to your uploaded game, click "Create Game Pass" in the options menu to the right, and configure what each pass does and how much it costs. These tend to be permanent upgrades, though, so be wary of including too few options at too low a price for particularly spendy players.

You can repeatedly kill Mr. Rich each hour and take the Cyclops Eye to the wizard to keep earning 20 Gems for free. In other words, there's no limit to the number of free Gems you can get.

WorldAlive – Crystalline Companion (must be redeemed in Island of Move)

All of this may well be intriguing, but does Roblox actually represent a Metaverse? Bronstein thinks so. "These experiences are not just in a single category, like gaming. In fact, we see them as a combination of media, gaming, entertainment and commerce, and the future of social interaction."

Charge for skill passes in our games— Going back to creating our own game within Roblox, we can elevate the experience an additional notch by designing special abilities, characters, and more that are only available if visiting players pay a certain price. This may be a better idea than charging an initial ticket to access the game.

That might have been just legal manoeuvring, but the question will eventually arise: who gets to decide what appears on the Metaverse? Given Roblox's significant audience of under-13s, the company is understandably keen on safety, employing over 3,000 people around the world to screen for inappropriate content. That is good news if you're a parent, but bad if you're a creator in a hypothetical future where a moderated Metaverse becomes the primary conduit for entertainment consumption and your work is judged sufficiently inappropriate.
